Homecoming 1987-88 was a momentous occasion. For the first time in the history of BHS, a parade was enjoyed by all. Many organizations, classes, exes, and former teachers, under the direction of Mr. Bennie Walker, participated in the festivities. The parade was broadcast by the local radio station, KBAN; and air time was supported by some local merchants.

Five former Homecoming Queens from 82-87 rode in the parade along with the 1987-88 nominees — Dana Morris, Julie Provence, Brandy Russell, and Bethany Spradling. During the pre-game activities, the 1987-88 Homecoming Queen — Brandy Russell — was presented to the fans.

Although the outcome of the football game was not to the liking of the fans, the students enjoyed the Homecoming Dance, which was held in the high school gym.

In Marketing Education, students learn all about the theory and principles of marketing and then practice what they've learned by training part-time in a cooperating business. Business owners and managers who have employed Marketing Education students in the past tell us that these students are among the very best of their employees because they are motivated to do well and because they understand the needs of the customer and importance of customer satisfaction.
Since more than one-third of all occupations are related to the field of marketing, employees are needed to perform the marketing functions associated with buying, selling, promoting, and distributing goods and services.

The club strives for enlightenment of the Hispanic Culture due to our geographical location. The club also offers a chance for all individuals to become part of an active group. One of the main goals is to help with the community services in order to gain the respect of the community and to help meet the needs that have not yet been met. Another goal is to become more fluent in speaking the Spanish language.

Office Education Association (OEA) is a state and national affiliated organization for secondary and post secondary students enrolled in office education programs.

OEA is an integral part of the office education instructional program. Through planned activities at the local, area, state, and national levels, students are provided opportunities to develop leadership, citizenship, and character traits that will help them become contributing members of the business community.

Participation in chapter activities help to develop traits which enhance the student's employability, personal traits, and salable skills and equally as important, self-satisfaction as a capable human being.

Vocational Office Education (VOE) is a course designed to provide junior and senior students with knowledge for entry-level employment in office occupations. There are two methods of instruction: (1) VOE Cooperative Education, and (2) VOE pre-employment lab.

Students enrolled in the cooperative class receive three credits toward graduation requirement. These students receive one hour instruction in the VOE Lab and 15 hours on-the-job training.

VOE Lab students receive one credit toward graduation requirements, and one hour instruction in the lab.

Learning activities and competency based and designed to stimulate actual office activities, and students evaluation standards are based on office standards.

University Interscholastic League (UIL) provides students the opportunity to pursue excellence outside of the classroom. Contests ranging from athletics to spelling, business to math and science, and speaking to writing instill in students qualities like fairness, stamina, and pride. Young people learn to win with humility and to lose with dignity. The accomplishments gained through participating in U.I.L. enrich not only the individual student but also the school and community.

GOOD-BYE TO THE CLOWN

Peggy, a nine year old, is in trouble at school because she seems unable to distinguish between her imagination and reality. She blames her difficult behavior on a "Clown," an imaginary playmate. At home, Peggy's mother becomes very upset at Peggy's insistence on the reality of the Clown, which the audience sees along with Peggy. The real emotional meaning becomes clear as Peggy slowly realizes that her father is dead — and that the Clown has been a substitute for him in her mind. With this realization, the Clown is no longer needed, and the Clown says good-bye, never to be real to Peggy again.

Cheerleading consists of more than just wearing short skirts, painting fingernails, and flirting with guys. Instead, Cheerleading is a task which involves unity, teamwork, and worst of all, camp!

Each year the Varsity and J.V. squads travel to a cheerleading camp to learn skills and techniques about the sport. Each day begins with calisthenics to prepare each person for workout.

Next, the squads are divided and taught chants and cheers. Finally, the evening ends with evaluation. All teams are evaluated and rewarded for their performances.

Cheerleading is not only a hard sport, but also a personal fulfillment. The team members not only support their team, but also obtain self-satisfaction.

Today's students need to learn to live in a technical world. Industrial art/technology education, through a program of classroom and laboratory experiences, provides a basic understanding of the technical aspects of industry and society. Through hands-on experiments, students learn how industry and technological processes operate.

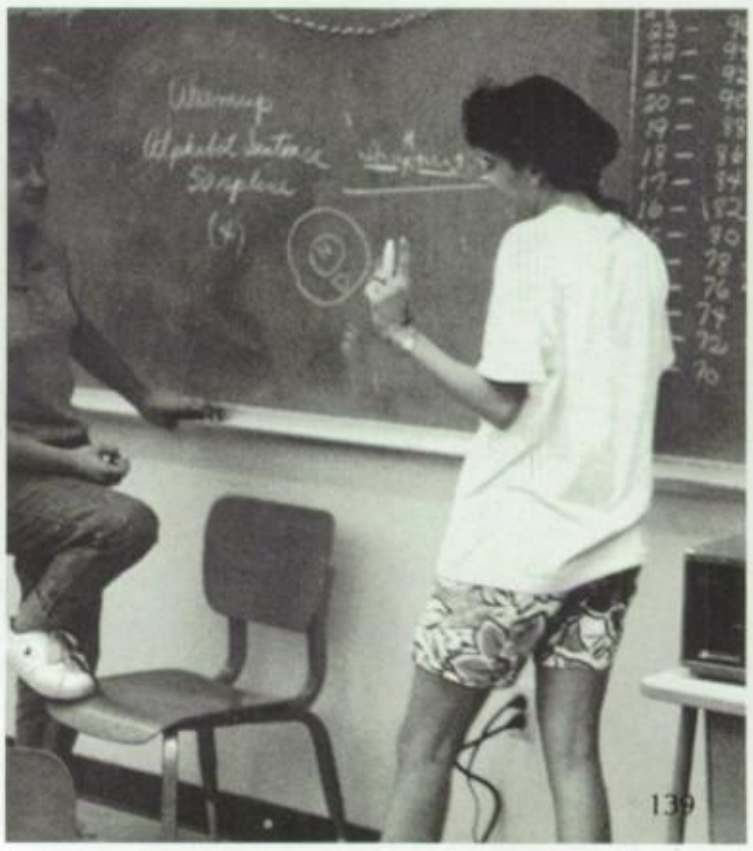
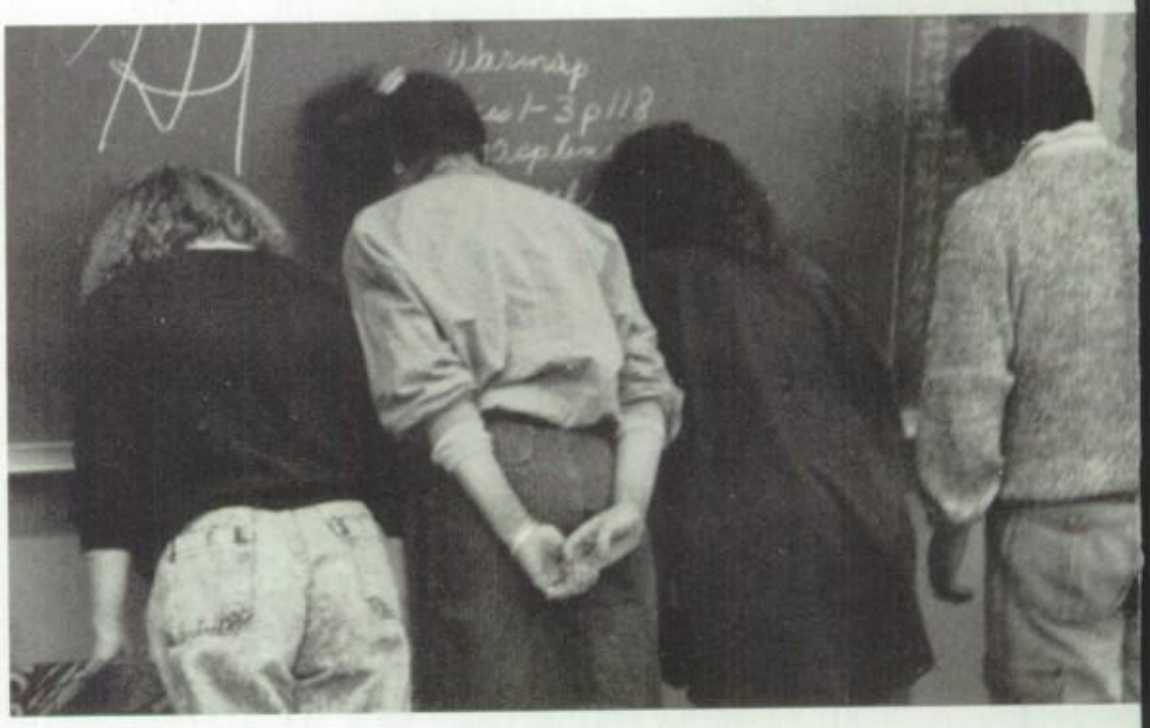
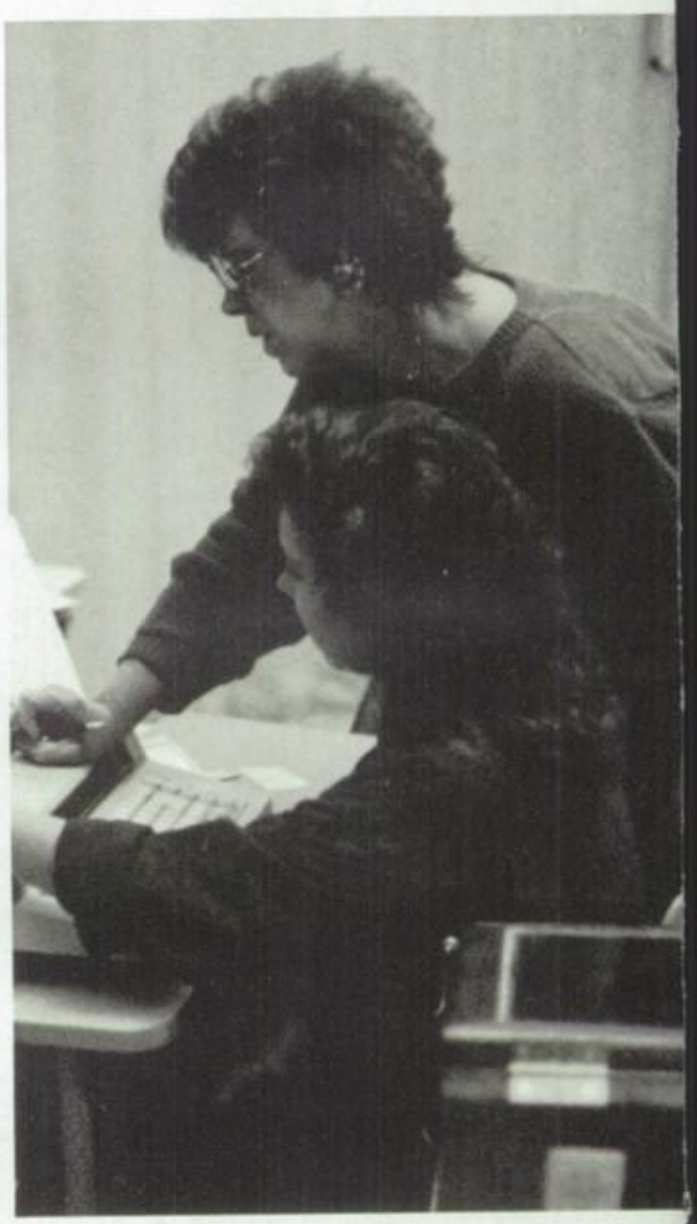
A yearbook serves many functions in addition to being a memory book — it is the history of the year, it represents an educational tool to provide practical hands-on experience for the yearbook staff, and it is a reference source for names, scores, honors, titles, and other relevant data.

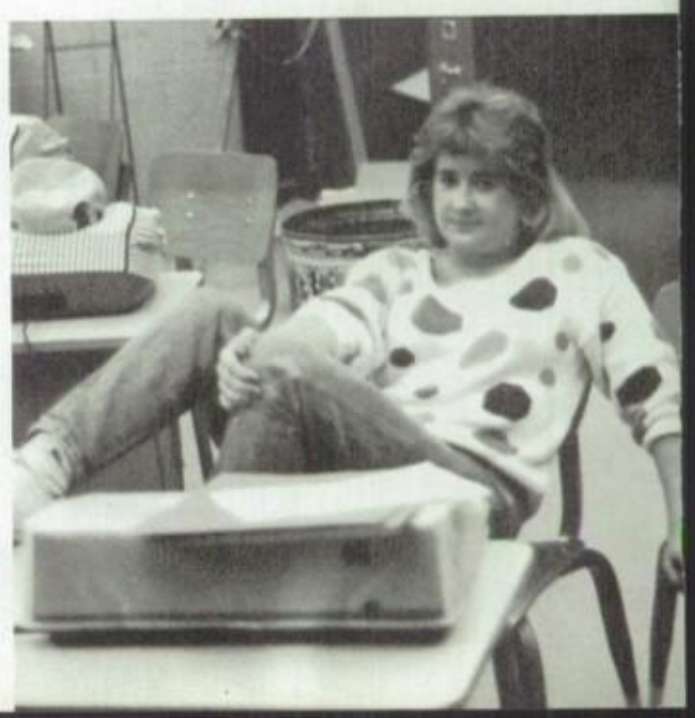
Each staff member works hard, takes pride in his accomplishments, and learns to work in unity with fellow staff members to create a yearbook that will make everyone proud.



At times when deadlines are drawing near, the staff members feel as though butting their heads against the wall is the only answer; but . . .







after quad-paks and ideas come together, there is a feeling of relief. The FINAL DEADLINE has come and gone.

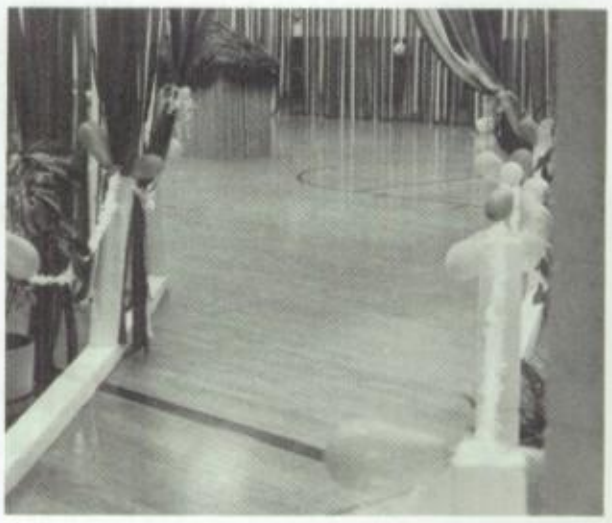
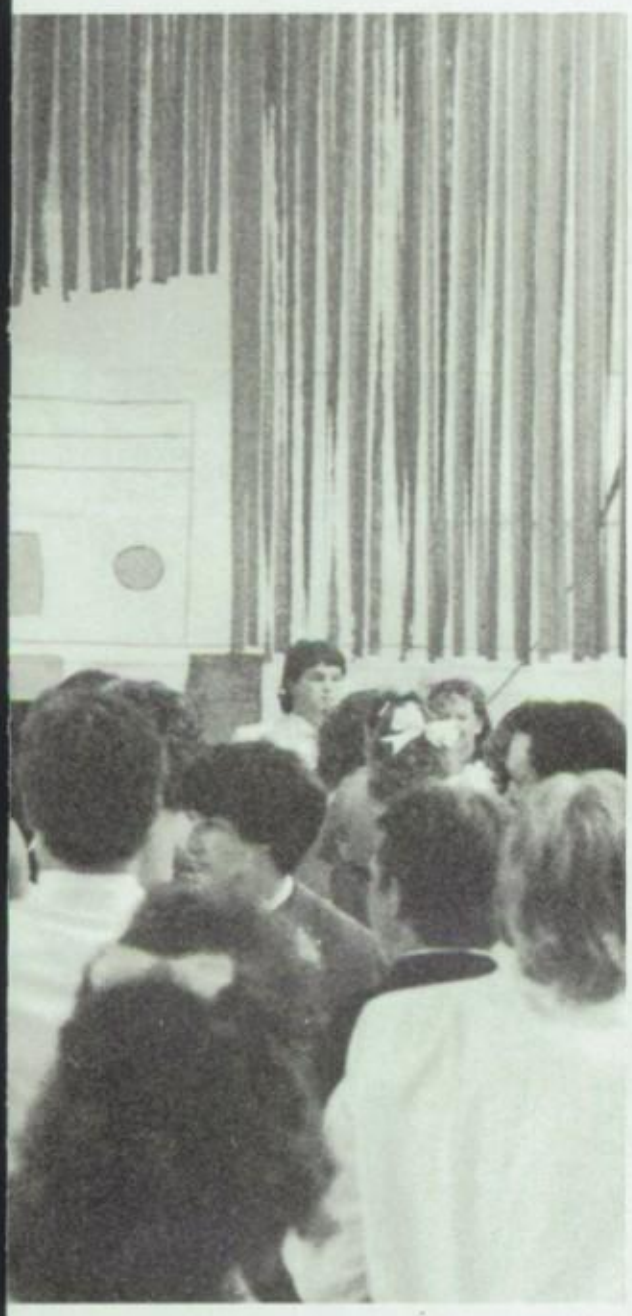
Prom afternoon at B.H.S. entailed getting ready for the big night of the year.



John and Pat Tefertiller were all dressed up for Prom Night. They helped chaperone.

The banquet preceding the prom was catered by the juniors and their sponsors. Sophomore girls served the dinner.

The big night had finally come. The girls were wearing their formals for which they had hunted months, and the boys had donned their rented tuxedos.



Almost Paradise — Stephanie Wade. With everyone dressed to the nines, Stephanie took the theme literally and dressed for the beach of Paradise.

What's In Style

HYPOTHETICAL WEDDING

The Home and Family Living Class requests the honor of your presence at the hypothetical marriage of Dana Michelle Morris
to Gary Lance Cunningham
on Friday, the thirteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and eighty-seven, at ten thirty a.m., at the First Baptist Church
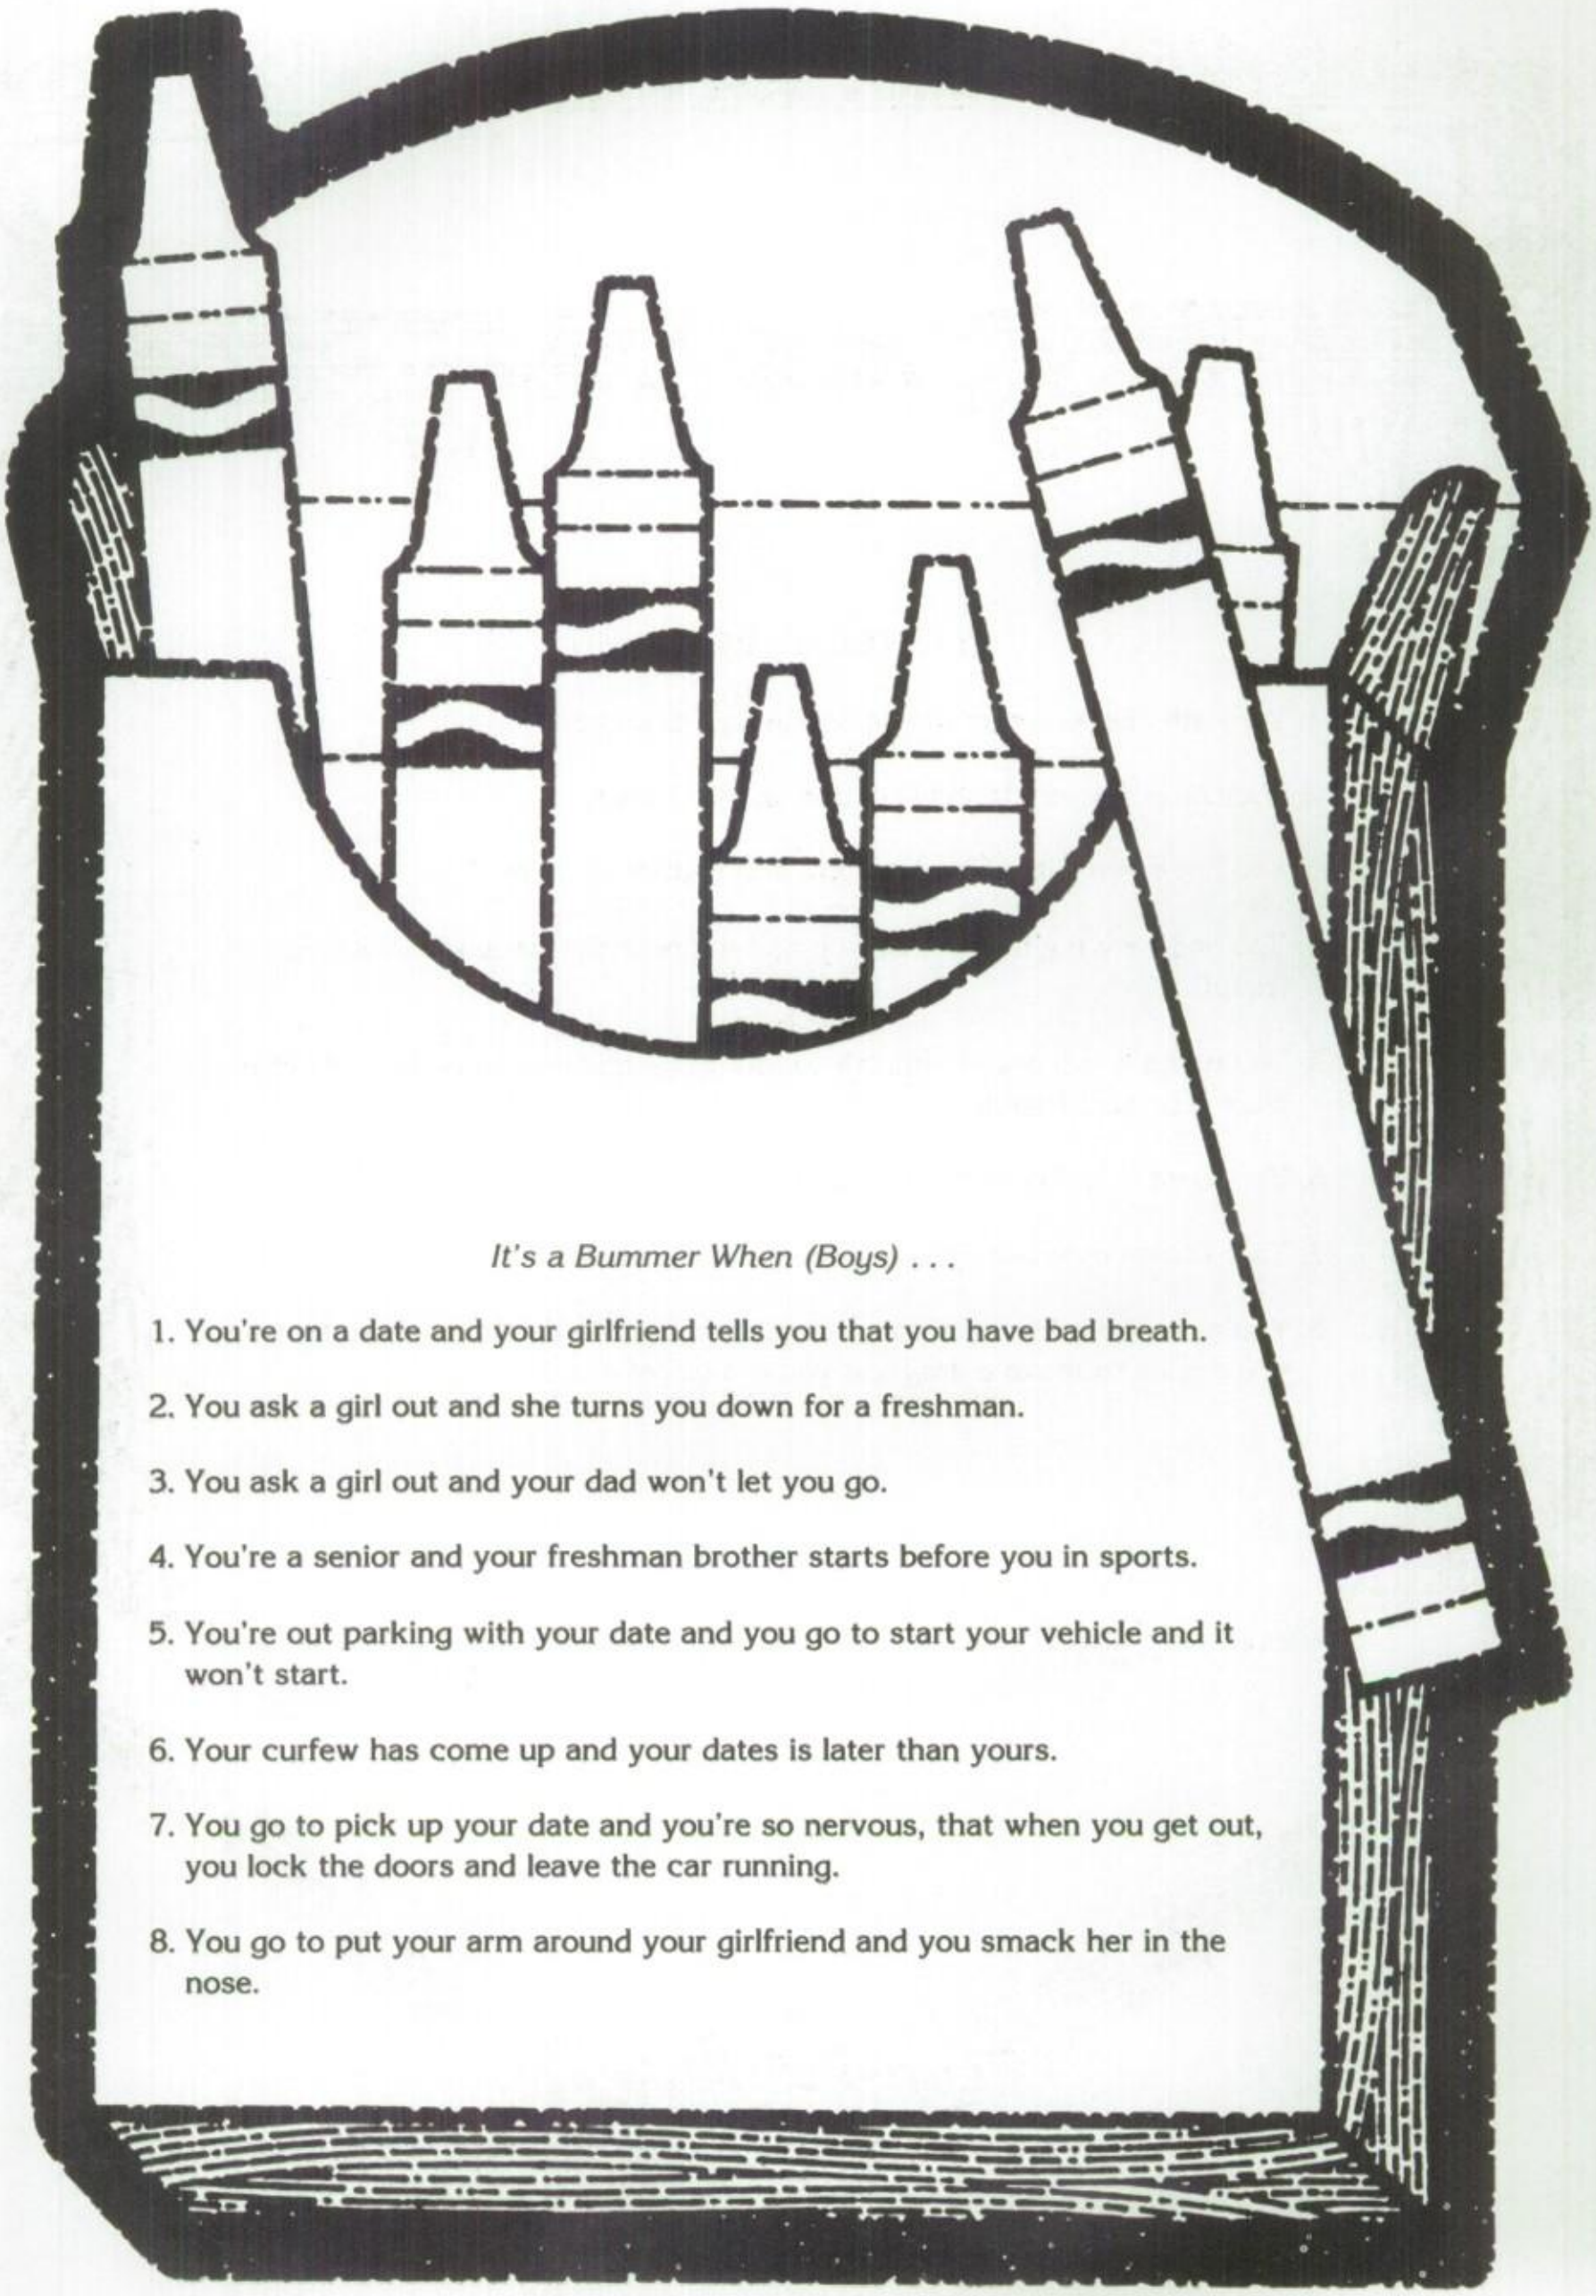
Bowie, Texas

Reception to follow in the Fellowship hall



It's a Bummer When (Boys) . . .

1. You're on a date and your girlfriend tells you that you have bad breath.
2. You ask a girl out and she turns you down for a freshman.
3. You ask a girl out and your dad won't let you go.
4. You're a senior and your freshman brother starts before you in sports.
5. You're out parking with your date and you go to start your vehicle and it won't start.
6. Your curfew has come up and your dates is later than yours.
7. You go to pick up your date and you're so nervous, that when you get out, you lock the doors and leave the car running.
8. You go to put your arm around your girlfriend and you smack her in the nose.

It's A Bummer When (Girls) . . .

1. Your little sister wears the same size bra as you do.
2. Your ex-senior boyfriend is dating an 8th grader.
3. You have two dates for one night, and neither of them show up.
4. You and your boyfriend break-up and the next day he is with your best friend.
5. You make a fool out of yourself to impress a guy and come to find out he likes your best friend.
6. Your best friend is with your boyfriend behind your back.
7. Your dream date asks you out and you're grounded.
8. You're supposed to take your little sister to piano lessons and on the way you decide to make a drag and you run out of gas.

Lonely are the dark halls of BHS at 3:45

The 87-88 year began with all the students arriving with "all the umph, vigor, and vitality" they could muster. The football season went well as we came out with only seven losses! Part of the reason for the improvement was due to the enthusiastic Jackrabbit spirit shown in our first ever homecoming parade. As football season came to a close, seniors enjoyed the sight of frantic juniors preparing for their first exit level exams; while other seniors were preparing for their third.

Students who had no trouble passing the test were likely to be found at the annual National Honor Society banquet. Others were busy preparing to take their vows during a hypothetical wedding given by the Home and Family class. 1987 ended as a well deserved Christmas break came upon us. The new year began as we received welcome, unexpected holidays thanks to snow, ice, and a merciful superintendent.

Basketball, Golf, Tennis, Baseball, and Track kicked off the Spring season, leading us up to one act play, UIL contests, and cheerleader tryouts. The end of school was anticipated as the festivities included the Junior-Senior Prom and a tearful graduation. The senior graduation marked the end of our high school days and the curious beginning of a new life.

GOOD LUCK
